ABOUT THE PROGRAMME

HR leaders have an ever growing list of pressures that need to be addressed immediately and with the full support of their organization. The ‘traditional’ role of HR, when it first became a profession, was to administer payroll and benefits, and act as a ‘policeman’ to ensure fairness and equity. HR also assisted in reorganizing organizations (particularly larger ones) and letting people go. The measure of success lay in the inputs rather than the outputs. The aspects comprise the ‘tactical’ side of HR. This is still important when we talk about the components of strategic HRM, but if it happens in a vacuum without an agreed strategy, it isn’t on its own going to be very useful or helpful to an organization in the longer run. This seminar is designed to meet increasing demand of budding HR professionals who need help in honing their skills in effective management of human resources.

OBJECTIVES:

- To create awareness among faculty members and students of management studies on various HR practices and strategies used in the current global scenario
- To encourage the budding HR professionals to focus on various professional practices adopted in the global perspective
- To elucidate the competencies and strategic knowledge of HR professionals
